Sabbatical Rules

12th November 2020

Purpose

Sabbatical leave is a leave to pursue scholarly activities and other activities that will enrich the person to serve the institute better. The sabbatical is a privilege provided to the faculty. The purpose of the leave is to (i) collaborate with other research institutions, (ii) write a book, (iii) work on policies, (iv) use expertise to the service to people, (v) participate in programs to further enhance professional strengths, (vi) work with industry/start-up, etc. The purpose of just spending a year elsewhere doing routine duties as in the institute is discouraged.

Eligibility

At most, one year of sabbatical can be taken by a faculty member after every six years of continuous full-time service. A faculty member may avail sabbatical facility for half an year also. The faculty must have very good teaching and research standing in the institute to be granted sabbatical leave.

Restrictions

At any time, a limited number of faculty can be on sabbatical, depending on the teaching requirements. The faculty must inform a semester in advance about the sabbatical leave to the institute. The faculty member must have at least one year of service after the return from the sabbatical leave.

Salary

The institute will normally pay full salary to a faculty member on sabbatical leave if the faculty is not paid a regular salary from another source during the sabbatical leave. All the benefits of the faculty member at the institute normally continue during the sabbatical leave.

All the benefits of the faculty member at the institute normally continue during the sabbatical leave.

Application

A faculty member seeking a sabbatical leave should apply one year in advance to the Director, stating the purpose, the duration, the locations, and the benefits to the faculty and the institute. The institute committee will process all the applications. The institute will decide and inform within three months from the date of the application.
